FROM SOIL TO SOUL FOOD SERIES

Ancient Practices – Agriculture of the Ancestors

Wednesday, January 28, 7:00 pm ET (online)

We begin by traveling back in time to explore how ancient Israelites cultivated the land using terracing, spring-fed irrigation, and the Seven Species —figs, grapes, olives, pomegranates, dates, wheat, and barley. Featured are two important heritage sites: Neot Kedumim, the biblical landscape reserve, and Sataf, where ancient techniques are still visible in the hills outside Jerusalem. We'll also trace the development of wine from biblical times to today's boutique vineyards, examining how ancient viticulture inspired Israel's booming wine industry and how wine remains both a ritual and a symbol of rootedness in the land.

Gila Levitan moved to Israel in 2005. She decided to become a licensed tour guide in order to pursue her passion for exploring and travelling around Israel. Gila is very curious and likes to know all the little details and being a guide enables her to teach people about a place that she loves. Gila loves to add touches of local culture to her tours, off the beaten track places and local delicacies - the best way to travel she believes is to taste new flavors and make new friends. Gila is proud to have been awarded the TripAdvisor Certificate of Excellence for the past five years in a row.

IDEALS OF FREEDOM SPEAKER SERIES

“Filthy, Un-American, and Often Dangerous:” Antisemitism and the Emergency Quota Act of 1921
Wednesday, March 4, 7:00 pm ET (online)

After the destruction of World War I, hundreds of thousands of European Jews sought to escape violence and poverty by emigrating to America. American consuls in Europe viewed these desperate Jews through a deeply antisemitic lens, fearing that they were radicals trying to enter and destroy the country with help from an international Jewish conspiracy. Acting on these fears, officials at the State Department worked with Congressional leaders to release reports that publicized the dangers of Jewish immigrants and ultimately led to the passage of the 1921 Emergency Quota Act. That legislation was instrumental in establishing the quota system that would keep desperate European Jews out of the country only a decade later, as they attempted to flee the Holocaust.

Kirsten Fermaglich is Professor of History and Jewish Studies at Michigan State University. Her most recent book, A Rosenberg by Any Other Name: A History of Jewish Name Changing in America (New York University Press, 2018) was awarded the Saul Viener Book Prize by the American Jewish Historical Society in June 2019. From January 2022 through June 2023, she served as a National Archives Distinguished Fellow, tasked with studying antisemitism in the United States federal government. Fermaglich is also the author of American Dreams and Nazi Nightmares: Early Holocaust Consciousness and Liberal America, 1957-1965 (Brandeis University Press, 2006) and the co-editor of the Norton Critical Edition of Betty Friedan, The Feminine Mystique (2013), with Lisa Fine. From 2016 through 2021, she was co-editor of the journal, American Jewish History, along with Daniel Soyer and Adam Mendelsohn. She currently serves on the board of the Association for Jewish Studies. Community partners – Wyner Family Jewish Heritage Center at American Ancestors, Massachusetts Antisemitism Synagogue Task Force (MAST), Orange County Jewish Community Scholar Program (CSP)

CSP

We are pleased to be a partner congregation of the Orange County Jewish Community Scholar Program (CSP). Please join us at an upcoming program!

Jewish Settlement in North America & The Importance of Mobility
Part 4 – From Suburbia to Sunbelt – Sunday, January 25, 1:00 pm ET (online)
(online in partnership with the Orange County Jewish Community Scholar Program)

Join us as we explore how American Jewish life has been built, rebuilt, uprooted, and re-rooted over 250+ years, tracing a story of mobility, reinvention, and opportunity from colonial port cities to today's suburbs and Sunbelt hubs.

Part 4 – From Suburbia to Sunbelt surveys 1924-2024 immigration restriction, postwar suburbanization, the rise of new Jewish centers outside major cities, the growth of communities in Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Atlanta, Boca Raton, Austin and more, and what American Jewish mobility may tell us about the next chapter ahead.

Jonathan D. Sarna, PhD, is the University Professor and Joseph H. & Belle R. Braun Professor of American Jewish History at Brandeis University and one of the world's leading scholars of American Judaism. He also serves as Chief Historian of the National Museum of American Jewish History and has been named to Newsweek's list of "America's 50 Most Influential Rabbis" (as a scholar). A graduate of Brandeis University (BA) and Yale University (PhD), Prof. Sarna has authored or edited more than 30 books, including the award-winning American Judaism: A History, When General Grant Expelled the Jews, Lincoln and the Jews, and Jews and the Civil War. Prof. Sarna is widely recognized as the preeminent interpreter of how Jews have shaped—and been shaped by—the American experience. This program is fully funded by a grant from the Jewish Community Foundation Orange County.

Sidelines to the Ballot Box: The Political Evolution of American Jews

Part 3 – From Eugene V. Debs to Lyndon Johnson - Thursday, January 22, 1:00 pm ET (online)

Part 4 – A House Divided surveys Jewish politics since the 1960s - Thursday, January 29, 1:00 pm ET (online)

American Jews went from a cautious, politically invisible minority to one of the most influential political communities in the country, and this four-part series traces the surprising—and often dramatic—story of that transformation.

Part 3 – From Eugene V. Debs to Lyndon Johnson follows the rise of Jewish progressive politics shaped by immigrant experience, labor activism, the New Deal coalition, and Jewish leadership in law, civil rights, and national political organizations.

Part 4 – A House Divided surveys Jewish politics since the 1960s — realignment, Israel and social issues, the emergence of a growing Republican wing, generational divides and identity politics, and what 2026 might reveal about the next era of Jewish American political life.

Jonathan D. Sarna, PhD, is the University Professor and Joseph H. & Belle R. International Holocaust Remembrance Day Commemoration

Monday, January 26, 7:30 pm

(online program presented by the Lappin Foundation)

"The lesson is that people should take care of each other and be helpful and kind and give each other a chance, no matter their background, what religion they are, what color skin they have, or where they are from."
Magda Bader, Holocaust Survivor

Please join us for a memorable International Holocaust Remembrance Day Commemoration
Monday, January 26, 2026
7:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m. ET on Zoom

The split second it took for then 14-year-old Magda Bader to let go of her mother's hand and take her sister's hand to leave the line destined for the gas chamber was her life-changing moment of survival. We invite you to hear Magda Bader's testimony of her lived experiences during the Holocaust as she shares memories of the ghetto, deportation, surviving Auschwitz, and more.

The program is free and everyone is welcome. For more information, please contact Sharon Wynn at 978.506.4490 or email schwartz@lappinfoundation.org.

Please register here for the Zoom link.
